FIRE DESTROYED J. N. WEAVER FARM

Conflagration Sunday Afternoon Consumed all Out-Buildings Excepting One.

LOSS ALMOST COMPLETE

Bucket Brigade Composed of Neighbors Saved Sheep Shed. Weaver Former Gettysburg Resident.

Fire, probably started by spontaneous combustion in a big wagon shed filled with oats, broke out on the John N. Weaver farm, two miles and a half from Gettysburg on the Herter's Mill road in Cumberland township, Sunday afternoon at 5:00 o'clock, and caused great damage. Weaver's big barn, small barn, wagon shed, two hog pens, implement shed, eight pigs, Charles Carey's threshing machine and all the season's crops in the buildings excepting one load, were completely destroyed.

On account of favorable winds the Weaver residence was saved and by efforts of a bucket brigade one sheep shed containing oats and wheat was prevented from going up in flames but with those exceptions the loss was almost complete. Insurance covers only a part of the damage.

John Weaver stated this morning that he did not even have a buggy in which to ride to Gettysburg.

A puff of black smoke from the wagon shed was the first indication that fire had broken out and successful efforts were immediately made to get the horses out of the barn. Flames soon mounted to the roof of the wagon shed, caught on to a large straw stack, then on to the barn and in five minutes the entire Weaver farm excepting the house was completely ablaze.

Even the sheep shed caught fire but the efforts of the bucket brigade prevented it from burning while a favorable wind kept sparks from setting off the house although it seemed for a time that the residence also would be burned.

In about one hour the buildings were burned to the ground.

John Weaver, proprietor of a restaurant on Carlisle street between Center Square and the railroad for ten years, purchased his 180 acre farm from William Johns. After stating that no estimate could yet be made of his loss he said he was thankful that the fire had not occurred at night and destroyed his residence.

WILL AID SALE OF SURPLUS FOOD

If Post Office Department Desires Says Charles S. Duncan.

THE PLAN IS FEASIBLE

No Word Yet Received from Washington. Postmaster Sure that Present Facilities are Adequate.

Should the post office department undertake to make a distribution of surplus army foodstuffs the local postmaster is ready to assist. This is the gist of a statement made by Postmaster Charles S. Duncan this morning.

He said that the plan as mapped out is feasible and that the local office and carriers can take care of all such business transacted through it. The plan would be for the post office to carry a list of the available surplus supply, with the customers selecting the articles they desire. They would in turn hand a list of these articles to the carrier, who would turn them over to the postmaster, who would in turn forward them to Washington. The food would be shipped C. O. D.

Mr. Duncan said this morning that he has received no word from Washington about the plan, but it is known that it is under discussion. He has received notice from Washington that bids would be received for carload lots of goods, such as corn meal and beans, but no word has come as to retail sales through the mail.

All that remains for the actual operation of Uncle Sam's mail order business, however, is the publication of a price list. Then orders may be sent to the post office and will be delivered in a few days. In fact, this will be an extension of the plan for selling foodstuffs at the markets and the schools, as has been adopted in many of the cities.

Though he has no authority nor money to increase his facilities either among the carriers or in the parcel post department, Postmaster Duncan is sure the present facilities are adequate to the job and would not break under the strain. He added that he believed it would hardly be such a strain upon the local force as the many varied war activities which were conducted through the post office nearly so much as the Christmas rush.

As Mr. Duncan is not yet familiar with the details of the plan, he could not say exactly how the price lists would be posted, or in what manner or form the money would have to be collected, or how deep a study of salesmanship his carriers would have to make before "going on the road" for Uncle Sam.

According to a dispatch, the arrangements with the Post Office Department for this sale were made at a conference held recently by Secretary of War Baker with post office officials and Representatives Kelly, of Pennsylvania, author of the resolution.

Secretary Baker announced at the close of the conference that Assistant Secretary Crowell would prepare a price list covering the entire available surplus of foodstuffs. This list, it is said, will be sent out to each of the 54,000 postmasters of the country, and to every rural route carrier.

A warning will be issued against sending orders direct to the War Department. Such orders probably will be ignored. The prices will be figured on the basis of cost plus postage charges, it is understood. The method of payment probably will be C. O. D.

TELLS OF MISSION WORK IN INDIA

Dr. Anna Kugler, of Guntur, Speaks at Union Services.

A MEDICAL MISSIONARY

Has Spent Thirty Five Years in India. Now Senior Doctor at Guntur Lutheran Hospital.

"I wish to present to you India, a leper, kneeling before America as the leper who knelt before Christ and said: 'If thou wilt, thou canst heal,'" said Dr. Anna Kugler, of Guntur, India, before the Protestant congregations of town and the Lutheran Summer Assembly at the union services held on the Seminary campus, Sunday evening.

Dr. Kugler, who has been a medical missionary for thirty five years and is now senior doctor at the Lutheran hospital in Guntur, continued, "Before us in India rises like a mountain the caste system but you may know what a change is coming when I tell you that recently Dr. Aberly, head of the United Lutheran church in India, and I were two of six missionaries invited to a dinner given and served by high class Brahmins and Dr. Aberly was asked to pronounce a blessing which was received with great reverence."

Dr. Kugler spoke chiefly about the diamond jubilee tour recently undertaken by a band of missionaries, native workers, Bible and theological students. The tour was preceded by a week of prayer and the meetings were attended by hundreds of Hindu women of all castes. At every village visited the missionaries held church services and traveled into rural districts to hold prayer meetings. Great mass meetings took place every night, the theme of every address being the "Life of Christ."

"What was the message carried to Brahmin and Sudra?" asked Dr. Kugler of her audience. "The same message brought to you, that man is sinful and Christ is a Saviour. Sin in India is not very different from sin in America."

Speaking of the climax of the jubilee in Guntur Dr. Kugler continued, "On the last great day four or five thousand Christians paraded through the streets where years ago Christians were stoned. Meetings were held in a large booth and overflow meetings in our beautiful church."

The final meeting was an ordination service in the church when twelve young men were set apart for the Lutheran ministry in India.

In conclusion Dr. Kugler said, "Could the church in America have been present you would have said, 'What hath God wrought' for it was not the work of man. Take this message home. I speak not only to you but to your congregations and especially to mothers. Send your boys and girls to India. May God give you power to carry out the vision."

Miss Elsie Thiem, of Baltimore, sang a solo before Dr. Kugler began her address.

The congregation was dismissed with prayer by Dr. Singmaster and the doxology.

Dr. Aberly preached at the services held in College Lutheran church on Sunday morning.

Gettysburg College Men Home After Receiving Honors in Europe.

Lieutenant Horace Gilbert Becker, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Becker, Hanover, is spending a 15-day furlough with his parents, at that place. Lieutenant Becker saw 13 months service in France and Germany. On different occasions he was stationed in Spain and Belgium.

The course at this university consisted of French, International Law and Diplomacy. Unless he receives other orders Lieutenant Becker will return to Camp Dix N. J., after his furlough, where he expects to receive his discharge.

Lieutenant Fritz D. Hurd, son of former Mayor D. W. Hurd, of Williamsport, Md., arrived in this country last week from overseas. He is now at Camp Dix and expects to be home in a few days.

Lieutenant Hurd originally enlisted in the medical department of the British army and after the United States became engaged in the war obtained a transfer to the American Artillery forces where he earned his commission.

Both men were college students of the past few years, and have many friends in Gettysburg.

CORN AND PORK PRICES CRASH

Influenced by Agitation Against High Cost of Living. Railroad Officials to Confer.

(By Associated Press)

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Grain and provisions crashed heavily down to-day in value. Selling was on a large scale influenced chiefly by the widespread agitation against the high cost of living. Within one hour corn prices dropped five and a half to eight cents a bushel, and pork to $1.25 a barrel.

December's delivery of corn, the principal option, fell to $1.49½, and January pork to $48.

Washington, Aug. 4.—All railroad union officials now in Washington were asked by Director General Hines to meet with him at noon to-day for a conference on the high cost of living.

Besides the chief of the engineers and railway trainmen who already have made demands for increased wages to meet the high living costs, it was expected that heads of the other two brotherhoods and the organizations of the shopmen and clerks would attend the meeting. Thus a majority of the 2,000,000 railroad workers would be represented.

Washington, Aug. 4.—Four hundred and fifty thousand members of the brotherhood of railway and steamship clerks, freight handlers express and station employees to-day joined with other railway workers in "demands that unless something be done materially to reduce the cost of living, our wages must be raised to give us immediate relief". The demands had been transmitted to the Railroad Administration, J. J. Forrester, president of the Brotherhood, announced.

PUNCTURED BY FORK HANDLE

Luther Fox, Cumberland Township, in Serious Condition at Carlisle Hospital.

JUMPED FROM LADDER

Landed on Knobbed End of Fork Stuck in Barn Floor. Nephew of Officer Fox.

As a result of one of the most unusual accidents ever happening in this vicinity Luther Fox, of Cumberland township, suffered pierced intestines and a punctured bladder when the wooden handle of a pitch fork went through his body, and is lying in a serious condition at the Carlisle Hospital.

Luther Fox, twenty six years old, is a nephew of Officer C. A. Fox, of Gettysburg, and for the past seventeen months has resided with his father-in-law, Emory G. Starnes, on the Table Rock road, about four miles north of town. Prior to that time he lived at the home of his father, Samuel Fox, of the Littlestown-Harney road.

At 6:30 o'clock on Saturday evening work for the day had been completed on the Starnes farm and Emory Starnes, his son, Willis, and Luther Fox and several farm helpers were descending from the hay mow after unloading the last load of oats.

Luther Fox pitched his fork down from the loft and the implement struck prongs downward in some hay on the barn floor. When he had descended the ladder within two rungs of the floor, Fox jumped backward and landed upon the knobbed end of the fork which tore open his intestines, went deeply into his body and pierced his bladder.

Two Gettysburg doctors were immediately summoned who rushed the patient to the Carlisle Hospital and performed an operation.

Emory Starnes accompanied the physicians and his son-in-law to Carlisle and upon his arrival home, Sunday morning, stated that the patient was in a very critical condition.

Mr. Starnes went to Carlisle again on Sunday afternoon and reported that Mr. Fox had come out of the ether, appeared bright and that chances for his recovery were pretty fair.

RAILWAY SPRINGS SURPRISE

Unannounced Crowd Comes Here from Johnstown on Sunday.

There were great gobs of consternation among the hackmen and souvenir vendors Sunday morning upon the arrival of an unannounced excursion from Johnstown bringing approximately six hundred battlefield visitors.

It appears that the party came unheralded even to the local railway people, and considerable confusion resulted in the gathering of the enter-tainers in the vicinity of the railway station. However, the crowd melted away gradually and comparatively few townspeople knew an excursion had been here.

Sixty one official delegates and many other persons took part in the annual convention which is held in various Adams County towns the first Saturday of every August for the general advancement of the order.

Gervus W. Myers, of Gettysburg, acted as president of the convention and was chosen District President for the coming year. The District President has general supervision over all P. O. S. of A. camps in Adams County which contain a total membership of twelve hundred and nine men.

P. S. Orner, of Ardenville, was elected President; W. O. Routsong, Bendersville, Vice President; Rev. T. C. Hesson, Ardenville, Master of Forms; George B. Aughinbaugh, Gettysburg, Secretary; A. K. Stock, Littlestown, Treasurer; O. H. Harner, New Oxford, Guard; E. M. Bittinger, Ardenville, Chaplain.

At the morning session E. W. Hartman delivered an address of welcome on behalf of the Cashtown camp and was responded to by G. W. Myers, president of the convention.

During the day Rev. T. C. Hesson, George F. Dutera, George A. Miller, and Rev. Clark Heller spoke about the patriotic services of American boys during the war and the splendid work of their own organization which furnished over 37,000 soldiers, sailors and marines from Pennsylvania.

It was announced that the amount of sick and death benefits paid during the past year amounted to $7,372.80 and valuation of camps was placed at $36,816.51.

Bendersville was declared upon as next year's meeting place.

The State Convention of the P. O. S. of A. which contains about 125,000 members in Pennsylvania will commence August 26th.

THREE MORE STRIKES

At Danville, Virginia; Sheffield, Alabama, and Washington.

(By Associated Press)

Danville, Virginia, August 4.—Workers in the Danville and Western shops went on strike to-day joining the machinists who already were out. The men said their appeal for a wage increase made eight months ago had not been answered.

Sheffield, Alabama, August 4.—Two hundred shop employees of the Southern Railway including machinists, boiler makers, blacksmiths, sheet metal workers, carmen, laborers and apprentices struck to-day.

Washington, August 4.—Shop men, boiler makers and electricians in the Washington yards went on strike to-day. Officials at Union Station estimated about 600 men were out. They said that while all Washington repair work would have to cease, railroad service in and out of the capital would not be affected for the present at least.

PIE COST INCREASED

(By Associated Press) Chicago, August 4.—Chicago's manufacturers of pies increased the price of their product to retailers to-day three to five cents. Manufacturers said the high cost of labor and of materials made it necessary to increase the price.

FOR COMPULSORY MILITARY COURSE

Secretary Baker Submits Universal Training Plan to Congress.

THREE MONTHS FOR BOYS

Youths of Nineteen Would be Subject to Service for Two Years. No Change in National Guard.

(By Associated Press) Washington, Aug. 4.—Maintenance of one field army with a war strength of 1,250,000 men is proposed in a bill establishing a permanent military policy, which was sent to Congress to-day by Secretary of War Baker.

The active force of this army would be 510,000 Regulars while the remainder would be youths of 19, who had taken a three months military training course which would be compulsory for a nineteen year old youth.

Washington, Aug. 4.—Plans for a permanent peace time army of 510,000 officers and men and a system of universal military training was transmitted to Congress to-day by Secretary of War Baker.

No change in the existing laws with regards to the organization of the National Guard and its relation to the Regular Army was suggested.

Three months' military training for youths of 19 would be made compulsory and promotion of officers by seniority would be abolished. Secretary Baker said the war had shown this system of promotion to be defective.

Under the War Department plans youths would be subjected to military service for two years after completing the course of military training and in the event of war the Selective Service Act in force during the Great War, would become operative.

The plan for registering youths of 19 years is the same with slight modification as was applied during the war. The bill provides for local and appeal board compensation at the rate of $10.00 for every day of board officials' work.

Exemption from training would be given to members of the regular army and navy, honorably discharged soldiers and sailors and "persons permanently physically and mentally unfit."

Under such exemption clauses the average number of boys of 19 to be found qualified for training each year would be about 600,000. This number would be held ready for immediate mobilization at all times.

STOCK REPORT

Tobacco's Setback Ranged from Two to Five Points.

(By Associated Press)

New York, August 4.—Active selling prevailed during the morning in the stock market. Rallies of one to two points among steels were offset by increased losses in rails, investment shares proving no less susceptible to pressure than speculative issues. Transcontinental and Grangers recovered extreme declines of two to three points, Colliers falling almost as much. Among tobaccos the setback ranged from two to seven points, and motors, oils and equipment broke two to five points. Call money was favorably influenced by last week's bank statements, opening at six to seven per cent.

NATION ACTS ON FOOD PRICES

Two Principal Plans are Discussed. Other Prices must Fall with Wheat.

PRESIDENT HAS POWER

Unfavorable Response at Washington to Suggestion of Pooling World's Food Supply.

Washington, August 4.—The fight against the profiteers will begin this week. The committee appointed by Attorney General Palmer at the meeting of cabinet officers, and others, will make a report to-day or Tuesday, and President Wilson will then act on its recommendations.

As indicated in these dispatches recently, the committee is understood to be discussing two plans principally, one to reduce the price of bread by reducing the price of wheat from the government price of $2.26 a bushel; the other by creating a commission or reviving the Food Administration with instructions to stop profiteering. For both these methods of dealing with the situation, very little new legislation is needed apart from the money they will cost.

A Direct Method

The method of reducing the price of bread is claimed to be the simpler and more direct. The farmer would continue to receive the price guaranteed by the government, but the miller would be permitted to value the wheat at a much lower price, to be fixed by the government, say $1.25 a bushel. The difference between the cost of the wheat to the miller and its valuation to him in his dealings would be refunded to the miller by the government out of the fund of $1,000,000,000 voted last year by Congress to the Grain Corporation. With the wheat costing the miller only $1.25 a bushel, the price of flour would be reduced accordingly and so the price of bread, each dealer, from the miller to the corner grocer who sold bread, being under careful supervision and penalty not to charge more than a fixed price. With the price of bread reduced, all other articles of daily necessities, such as meats, clothing, shoes and rent, would inevitably fall, for the price of bread is the barometer of food and clothing, just as steel is the barometer of all industry. This plan would cost the government probably the billion dollars appropriated for the Grain Corporation, but it would reduce the cost of living, which is the vital problem at this time.

Food Administration

The second plan, revival of the Food Administration, has already been considered by President Wilson, but it is not known what decision he has reached. All the legal machinery for this commission is still intact. The Food Administration ceased to exist simply because no money was asked from Congress to keep it alive. One of the purposes for which it was created was, according to the law, "to prevent, locally or generally, scarcity, monopolization, hoarding, injurious speculation, manipulations and private control of the necessities of life, distribution and movement and to maintain governmental control of the necessities during the war."

Legally, the war is not over until President Wilson issues a proclamation of peace after the treaty has been signed, and that date is evidently still in the distant future. Therefore, President Wilson now has ample authority to re-establish the Food Administration, or some similar commission, with all the sweeping powers of commandeering food supplies which the law gave Mr. Hoover. All that is needed is the money to pay salaries.

That the government still has supreme control over all the necessities of life was shown only a few days ago when Secretary of the Navy Daniels received a telegram from the supply office of the Navy at San Francisco, stating that it seemed impossible to make contracts with the local fuel oil dealers for the vast supply of fuel oil that must be bought for the ships of the new Pacific fleet that is on its way to the Pacific. The coming of the fleet had evidently been the signal for a fine bit of profiteering by the oil companies. Prices had risen precipitately. Secretary Daniels wired briefly:

"Commander all oil needed in the name of United States."

RAILROAD STRIKES

(By Associated Press)

Cleveland, August 4.—Twelve hundred men employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad went on strike to-day.

Duluth, August 4.—Approximately 3700 shop men comprising members of railway unions left their places to-day. Fifteen hundred men are on strike in Superior, about 500 in Duluth and 700 at Two Harbors.

LIQUOR INTERESTS START THEIR FIGHT

Volstead Bill is Considered Opening Gun of the Wet Campaign.

Washington, August 4.—The opinion by Elihu Root and his associates that the Volstead bill for the enforcement of wartime prohibition is unconstitutional is regarded as the opening gun of the legal fight to be put up by the "wets" against the law when it is finally enacted. The bill, as it came from the House, is still in the hands of the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, with no present prospect of action by the Senate.

That some of the most drastic features of the House bill will be modified in the Senate is regarded as possible. Indeed, the Senate committee has already agreed upon one slight concession by permitting the manufacture for home consumption only of "non-intoxicating wine and cider."

On the one outstanding feature of the bill which the "wets" are now most bitterly opposing—the definition of intoxicating liquors as those containing more than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol—the Senate bill makes no change. It is this question which is already in the courts, and up to the present time the "wets" appear to have been gaining the decisions, if it is conceded that beer containing less than 2 1/2 per cent is non-intoxicating. Of 14 federal judges who have had the question before them 10 have held that the statute does not forbid non-intoxicating beer. A review has been prepared showing in detail the position of the various judges who have considered the subject.

RAILWAY TIE-UP IS EXPECTED

Industries Throughout Middle West Already Effecting to Serious Extent.

QUARTER MILLION OUT

Chicago Head, Council of Shopmen's Union, Says they are Going Ahead. Predicts Complete Tie-up.

Chicago, August 4.—A complete tie-up of the railroads of the country is very probable, in the opinion of M. L. Hawver, president of the Chicago district council of the Federated Railway Shopmen's Union, which called a strike of shop crafts Friday. He returned from Washington Sunday and declared the strike is spreading rapidly, and that the unrest among railway workers is so general that the movement has overwhelmed the international officers of the various unions involved.

Advices Sunday from Cleveland were that the Executive Board of American Federation of Railway Workers with a membership of 26,000, chiefly unskilled labor in Cleveland and the East, had decided to strike to-day according to Mr. Hawver.

The Maintenance of Way Men's Union also is preparing to strike, it was said.

Effect on Industries

With more than 250,000 shopmen on strike and the number increasing, both President Hawver and Secretary John D. Saunders declared railroad schedules and industry would be seriously crippled within a day or two. Already steel mills and other industries at Gary and other Northern Indiana points in Chicago have begun to feel the effects of the strike, according to union leaders, and when the strike is more complete factories and mills will be forced to close down for lack of ore, coal and other essentials.

"This movement is spreading like wildfire and we are not going to lay down until we get our demands," said President Hawver. "It has not received the endorsement of our grand lodge presidents, although they now are getting ready for a strike August 24. But we are going ahead and are receiving many messages telling of more men out to go out."

"The seriousness of the situation seems to be better understood in the east than out here."

Threaten Complete Tie-Up

"In Washington the executive committee has been repudiated and the entire grievance committee of 78 members, representing all railway workers, has been negotiating with the railroad administration. Director General Hines, while stating that he is favorable toward the workers, has said that there are only two ways to meet our demand—a congressional appropriation or increased freight rates."

"More and more it appears to be that a complete tie-up of the roads is to be the outcome."

"Advices from Cleveland Sunday were that the American Federation of Railway Workers would strike to-day. 'The maintenance of way employees' union, with headquarters in Detroit, likewise is ready to strike, we understand."

Additional to the strike of shopmen reported Sunday by Secretary Saunders, were the Illinois Central shops at Memphis and Kankakee; Lake Erie and Western, whole system; Wabash, whole system; Indiana Harbor Belt Line, all out.

Advices stated, according to the secretary, that all men on the Chicago and Western Indiana and the iron range lines would go out at 10 a. m. to-day and those of all roads entering Indianapolis would strike Tuesday.

PERSHING WISHES LEGION SUCCESS

In First Edition of Service Men's Weekly. Will Foster Ideals.

The American Legion, the national organization of American veterans of the great war, has started to publish its official magazine, "The American Legion Weekly." One of the features of the first number is a cablegram from General John J. Pershing from France, in which he predicts for the Legion a most useful future of tremendous value in fostering the ideals and purposes for which the American armies fought.

General Pershing says in his message:

"It gives me much pleasure to extend to the American Legion my hearty good wishes for success on the occasion of the first issue of the official paper of the society of veterans of the great war. The Legion is destined to be of tremendous value in fostering the ideals and purposes for which we fought and in spreading among our people the lessons learned in the war."

"The American Legion Weekly, as the medium of communication throughout the country, will more closely unite the already strong bonds of comradeship among the members. I predict a most useful future for the Legion and the loyal support of all for the new Weekly."

The Legion's magazine will have an initial circulation of 100,000 copies. Besides the message from General Pershing, Lord Northcliffe, former President William Howard Taft, and state governors have contributed articles endorsing the American Legion. The Weekly also contains cartoons by Briggs and J. Norman Lynd; a sports review by Walter Camp; editorials, a page of humor, and reports from the State branches of the American Legion, showing the progress of organization of local Posts since the meetings of soldier, sailor and marine delegates in Paris and St. Louis.

Miss Margaret Epley has returned to her home after visiting her sister, Mrs. John Gardner, Norfolk, Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Menchey, of Harrisburg, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Ohler, of Steinwehr avenue.

JAPAN'S FOOTHOLD IN SHANTUNG

Inside the dotted semi-circle is the former German sphere of influence in Shantung. Japan's under the peace treaty, Kiaochau, where Germany was absolute, is the small black area, while ten miles each side of the railroad from Tsingtao to Tsinan, capital of Shantung, was within the German "sphere of influence." Kiaochau, including town of Tsingtao, has 200 square miles, population 195,000. Former German sphere of influence outside Kiaochau is 2500 square miles, population 1,200,000. Controlled area along Tsingtao-Tsinan railroad, owned by Germany, is 5000 square miles.

WILL JUNK WARSHIPS

Twelve Vessels Have Outlived Usefulness as Fighters.

Historic Oregon Among Craft That Will Be Relieved From Active Duty.

Washington. — Twelve pre-dreadnaught battleships will be relieved of active duty with the fleet, placed out of commission and eventually broken up for junk or used for targets by more modern vessels, under plans now being worked out by the navy department. The ships are of the "mixed battery" type and are not considered to be of any value against latest fighting craft.

Four of the battleships, the historic squadron comprising the Oregon, Indiana, Iowa and Massachusetts, have already been relegated to the scrap heap. The remaining eight, apparently doomed to the same fate, are the Kearsarge, Kentucky, Illinois, Alabama, Wisconsin, Maine, Missouri and Ohio.

The twelve vessels, built between 1893 and 1901, represent a total expenditure for hulls and machinery alone of more than $90,000,000. When placed out of commission they will release for other duty approximately 10,000 enlisted men and nearly 400 officers.

The ships long ago outlived their usefulness as combatant units in a fighting fleet, although when they were built they were among the most formidable war vessels afloat. All of them were used during the war with Germany as training ships or coast defense units. Slow of speed, with small coal capacity, inferior ordnance equipment and insufficient protection against present-day projectiles, the ships, if kept in commission, would be more of a liability than an asset, in the opinion of naval experts. They are armed with old-type 12 and 13 inch guns in the main batteries and eight-inch in the secondary defense.

The question of what to do with so many practically useless battleships after they have been placed out of commission is before the department at this time.

Her Stocking Ticked Her Into Police Cell

Milwaukee. — Alice Hawkins has a penchant for the unusual in jewelry. Patrolman Huettl had occasion recently to question Miss Hawkins. As he escorted her to the patrol box he heard a faint tick-ticking. The noise apparently came from beneath a very tight skirt. "What's that?" asked Huettl. "Got a wooden one?" and he tapped his own leg. "Nothing like that," explained Miss Hawkins. Then explaining that she "was going to spend the night with friends and wanted to be sure to get up on time," she reached down and, after requesting the inquisitive officer to "turn his back," deftly removed a full man's size alarm clock from her left stocking.

HUBBY CAN'T HELP HIS FACE

Judge Tells Wife Her Husband Is Not to Blame for What Nature Did.

New York. — After Kelrons Pollus drew back the gauze curtains that veiled his broken jaw his bride of seventeen forgot all her love for him, and straightway made for court. She charged her husband with disorderly conduct.

But the judge on hearing the facts in the case told the bride her husband was not to blame for the face nature had given him, and lectured her on courting in the dark.

For Mrs. Pollus met her hubby in a moving picture house during an exciting eight-reel love affair. Mr. Pollus had just been hit by an actor and came in to forget his broken jaw.

It was not until days after the marriage that Mrs. Pollus saw her husband's face in full, and what she saw — well, that's where this story started.

HOW FLIES CARRY DISEASE

Campaign Against Pests Has Started in Gettysburg.

Flies come in contact with typhoid germs in open privy vaults and carry them into houses where they deposit them upon food. The germs may be found upon their bodies, in their crops and in their excreta.

The fly whose pus soaked legs have wallowed in the discharge from a festering ulcer, may carry deadly infection to a tiny scratch upon a healthy person.

Cholera, dysentery and paratyphoid fever are diseases that are frequently transmitted by flies.

The correspondence of the death rate from infantile diarrhoea with the advance and wane of the fly season, presents a striking picture which tells its own story.

Milk is an excellent medium for the growth of many kinds of germs. One fly in the milk can mean dangerous pollution before the milk reaches the consumer, which in many instances is a baby.

The life of a fly is usually from six to eight weeks. They seldom travel more than 1,000 yards from their breeding place and scarcely ever fly higher than 75 feet. Their most highly developed sense is the sense of smell.

Oscars which are repulsive to man are delightful to the fly.

The contrary is also true. The odor of oil of lavender is very offensive to them, so also is geranium, heliotrope and white clover.

Flies cannot abide darkness. A room may soon be cleared of flies if it be darkened, leaving a narrow slit, as a slightly raised window, through which a glimmer of light may penetrate. In a short time the flies will be attracted to the opening and escape into the light.

DOUBT COLONEL DEMMING

Mineralogy Experts Say Potash Story is too Good to Be True.

Since the publication of a statement by Colonel Henry Demming, Adams County court stenographer, that potash-bearing rock, yielding as high as 44 per cent, had been found in colossal quantities in Tioga county, a consultation has been held with several experts in mineralogy and Pennsylvania geology.

In every instance grave doubt has been expressed of the correctness of Colonel Demming's analysis.

Colonel Demming was for years geologist and chemist to the Pennsylvania state bureau of mines, and no one doubts his sincerity. But other mining experts, who, of course, refuse to be quoted until they have personally made an examination of the rock, think that the story is too good to be true, and that Colonel Demming was carried away with his enthusiasm.

Colonel Demming says that a 600-foot hill near Davis Station, along Long Run, Tioga county, is composed of rock running from 5 to nearly 45 per cent potash, in addition to nitrate. This hill alone at present rates for potash would be worth more than $3,000,000,000, and Colonel Demming says the entire surrounding country is rich in potash. The doubters point out that the entire section has been bored for mineral during a period of several decades, and they say that, if potash existed, it would have been discovered before this. Colonel Demming's reply is that the Tioga potash is found in a geological combination heretofore entirely unknown and, therefore, has escaped detection.

Fortune Awaits Inventor.

"Untearable" linen has long been the dream of many people, but although experiments have often been made, the way to weave an indestructible cloth is still unknown, and no one has claimed the fortune which is awaiting the inventor who solves the mystery.

Cruelty in Training Birds. Performing birds are often taught by starvation. How many are aware that the pretty doves that fly when released to the bespangled artists, and form themselves into geometrical patterns on her head and outstretched arms, are often the sole survivors of hundreds which have been starved and then only fed when they perched upon an exact spot on the owner's arms.

SPORTING COLUMN

Charles Dooin, manager of the Reading International League Club, has resigned his position because he was ordered to release Mike Doolan and Runt Walsh.

Dooin maintains that Charley Kelchner, business manager of the club and former coach of Albright College, interfered with his plans as manager.

Kelchner is well known in Gettysburg where he has appeared many times with Albright College teams.

Efforts to strengthen their forces were made last week by three leading National teams and the New York Americans.

The Giants acquired from the Boston Nationals Pitcher Arthur Nehf, who held Pittsburgh to two hits Friday, and was the only pitcher to defeat Cincinnati in 10 games last week.

Cincinnati obtained from Rochester Internationals Outfielder See, who has been batting well.

Chicago bolstered up both defense and offense by getting Infielder Herzog from the Boston Nationals.

Andy Yim, former Gettysburg Blue Ridge league center fielder, scored the winning run when Logan Square beat Connie Mack's Athletics at Atlantic City on Sunday.

Many Gettysburg fans went to McSherrystown on Sunday afternoon to see the base ball nine of that place lose to York American Chain team 3-0.

A Gettysburg team with Palmer in the box and Hartzell behind the plate journeyed to Littlestown, Saturday afternoon, and won an exciting contest 7-4.

YANKS SALVAGE IMMENSE BOOTY

German Guts Worth Many Millions Are Found in Argonne Forest.

WEAPONS ABANDONED BY FOE

Paris.—War booty, valued at more than $5,000,000, left by the Germans in their flight from the Argonne forest, the scene of America's greatest battle in the world war, has been collected by a force of negro soldiers who have been cleaning up the famous battlefield. Machine guns, rifles, munitions and war supplies of all kinds have been collected in every wooded ravine, dugout and trench in the Argonne-Meuse sector, comprising 490 square miles.

The American engineers moved up to the battlefield soon after the armistice was signed. For miles around there was not a village or farm that was occupied.

Orders were issued to squads of American salvage engineers to pick up every gun they found, broken or in serviceable condition, as well as all war material, and place the supplies along the nearest road for collection in army trucks. The colored fighters received instructions that whenever they came across an unexploded shell they were not to touch it, but to put up a little stick beside it with a note so that the munition salvagers could find it later.

The doughboys soon made the discovery that the Germans in their flight abandoned hundreds of machine guns and even large pieces of artillery which the Yankees, in their hurry to advance, had failed to see.

Loaded in Box Cars.
One of the discoveries made by the Americans who have completed the task of cleaning up the battlefield was the unusually large number of machine guns the Germans had installed in the Argonne forest. No information was secured as to the number the enemy was able to save in his flight toward the Rhine, but thousands of these weapons were left behind. In one small sector of the battlefield several hundred cars were loaded with machine guns.

In one town located in the rear of the battlefield there is a pile of brass shell cases, abandoned by the Germans, that would more than fill the hold of a large ocean freighter. It was estimated that nearly 1,000,000 shell cases had been piled in that village. These have been purchased by the French government.

Salvage Work Expensive.
Experts with the American expeditionary forces have estimated that the Yankees had captured 200 per cent more war booty in the Argonne forest than their records will show. This was due, it is said, to the rapidity of the American advance and to the hurry of the Germans to leave their dugouts and weapons and surrender to their conquerors.

The work of cleaning up the Argonne battlefield, however, has been an expensive one, although vast quantities of copper, brass and steel have been salvaged. It has cost more than $2,000,000 to complete the task, but the work has been a success financially, as the booty is worth more than twice that sum.

SOLDIERS LAUGH AT DEATH
Pair Stricken With Influenza on Board Ship Use Prize Ring Count.

San Francisco.—A tragic story of how two British soldiers laughed at death is told in a letter received by Harry Annan, assistant manager of the Palace hotel, from a friend in Auckland, New Zealand. An extract from the letter reads:

"The transport I came home on carried two soldier pals, both of whom had influenza. After the doctor had given them up as hopeless they entertained themselves and their neighbors by counting one another out. It would have been humorous but for the awful tragedy of it; alternately, 'One-two . . . eight-nine—out—you dead yet?' till one of them failed to answer. I don't know quite how I felt about it; pity and admiration were strangely mixed."

Soldier Beats Train.
Junction City, Kan.—Trains were too slow for a certain Kansas soldier who has been away from his home at Salina for two years. When he returned to Camp Funston the other day he received a pass to spend Sunday at Salina. Instead of waiting several hours for the next train to his home town, he hit the highway and was fortunate in catching an automobile ride to Abilene. His good luck did not forsake him there, for he again took to the road and another motorcar picked him up and landed him in Salina about the time the train was leaving Junction City.

When Tobacco Was Taboo.
In 1638 the Massachusetts general court ordered, a writer comments, "that no man shall take any tobacco within 20 poles of any house, or so near as may endanger the same." In 1738 an act was passed forbidding the carrying of fire through the streets except in a covered vessel, smoking, or having in one's possession "any lighted pipe or segar" in the streets or on the wharves. The penalty was $2. If the offender was in a ropewalk, the penalty was from $5 to $100. This prohibition of 1738 was not repeated until 1880.

MURDERING A NEGRO IN CHICAGO RIOT

FREDERICK SHERIFF STOPS ESCAPE

Prevents Jail Delivery of Eleven Prisoners All Ready to Go.

Frederick, Md., August 4—A desperate jail delivery by 11 prisoners was foiled by Sheriff Charles H. Klipp Saturday night, and his timely discovery no doubt saved the life of Deputy Sheriff Wesley Staley. Robert Ogle, who, with Walter Weinhart, of Baltimore, held up the officials of the Walkersville Savings Bank at the point of revolvers and robbed the bank of $2,800, about two weeks ago, headed the plot.

The prisoners were armed with pieces of lead pipe, iron weights from radiators and wooden legs from their cots, ready to assault Deputy Staley on his final round to lock them in their cells.

The attempt was discovered by Sheriff Klipp about 20 minutes before the time for locking up the prisoners for the night. A negro trusty was called from the jail corridor to do some work, and when he was taken back the sheriff noticed 11 other prisoners standing in groups conversing in an undertone. Becoming suspicious, on account of the desperate character of some of the men, the sheriff summoned Deputies Staley and Dutrow and started an investigation.

The lock on the cell door of Ogle and Weinhart was found broken and patched in a manner to avoid notice. The lock on the door leading to the jail had been picked. Another door, however, with a padlock on the outside was encountered, which prevented the prisoners from going farther. They then attempted to dig their way through the rear wall of the jail, and after removing a number of bricks, encountered a steel grating, which stopped the progress of their work. They then armed themselves and awaited the coming of the deputy on his night round.

Charles Doolin, manager of the Reading International League Club, has resigned his position because he was ordered to release Mike Doolan and Runt Walsh.

Doolin maintains that Charley Kelchner, business manager of the club and former coach of Albright College, interfered with his plans as manager.

Kelchner is well known in Gettysburg where he has appeared many times with Albright College teams.

Efforts to strengthen their forces were made last week by three leading National teams and the New York Americans.

The Giants acquired from the Boston Nationals Pitcher Arthur Nehf, who held Pittsburgh to two hits Friday, and was the only pitcher to defeat Cincinnati in 10 games last week.

Cincinnati obtained from Rochester Internationals Outfielder See, who has been batting well.

Chicago bolstered up both defense and offense by getting Infielder Herzog from the Boston Nationals.

Andy Yim, former Gettysburg Blue Ridge league center fielder, scored the winning run when Logan Square beat Connie Mack's Athletics at Atlantic City on Sunday.

Many Gettysburg fans went to McShertystown on Sunday afternoon to see the base ball nine of that place lose to York American Chain team 3-0.

YANKS SALVAGE IMMENSE BOOTY

German Guns Worth Many Millions Are Found in Argonne Forest.

WEAPONS ABANDONED BY FOE

Paris.—War booty valued at more than $5,000,000, left by the Germans in their flight from the Argonne forest, the scene of America's greatest battle in the world war, has been collected by a force of negro soldiers who have been cleaning up the famous battlefield. Machine guns, rifles, munitions and war supplies of all kinds have been collected in every wooded ravine, dugout and trench in the Argonne-Meuse sector, comprising 490 square miles.

The American engineers moved up to the battlefield soon after the armistice was signed. For miles around there was not a village or farm that was occupied.

Orders were issued to squads of American salvage engineers to pick up every gun they found, broken or in serviceable condition, as well as all war material, and place the supplies along the nearest road for collection in army trucks. The colored fighters received instructions that whenever they came across an unexploded shell they were not to touch it, but to put up a little stick beside it with a note so that the munition salvagers could find it later.

The doughboys soon made the discovery that the Germans in their flight abandoned hundreds of machine guns and even large pieces of artillery which the Yankees, in their hurry to advance, had failed to see.

Loaded in Box Cars.
 One of the discoveries made by the Americans who have completed the task of cleaning up the battlefield was the unusually large number of machine guns the Germans had installed in the Argonne forest. No information was secured as to the number the enemy was able to save in his flight toward the Rhine, but thousands of these weapons were left behind. In one small sector of the battlefield several hundred cars were loaded with machine guns.

In one town located in the rear of the battlefield there is a pile of brass shell cases, abandoned by the Germans, that would more than fill the hold of a large ocean freighter. It was estimated that nearly 1,000,000 shell cases had been piled in that village. These have been purchased by the French government.

Salvage Work Expensive.
 Experts with the American expeditionary forces have estimated that the Yankees had captured 200 per cent more war booty in the Argonne forest than their records will show. This was due, it is said, to the rapidity of the American advance and to the hurry of the Germans to leave their dugouts and weapons and surrender to their conquerors.
 The work of cleaning up the Argonne battlefield, however, has been an expensive one, although vast quantities of copper, brass and steel have been salvaged. It has cost more than $2,000,000 to complete the task, but the work has been a success financially, as the booty is worth more than twice that sum.

SOLDIERS LAUGH AT DEATH

Pair Stricken With Influenza on Board Ship Use Prize Ring Count.

San Francisco.—A tragic story of how two British soldiers laughed at death is told in a letter received by Harry Annan, assistant manager of the Palace hotel, from a friend in Auckland, New Zealand. An extract from the letter reads:

"The transport I came home on carried two soldier pals, both of whom had influenza. After the doctor had given them up as hopeless they entertained themselves and their neighbors by counting one another out. It would have been humorous but for the awful tragedy of it; alternately, 'One-two . . . eight-nine—out—you dead yet?' till one of them failed to answer. I don't know quite how I felt about it; pity and admiration were strangely mixed."

Soldier Beats Train.
 Junction City, Kan.—Trains were too slow for a certain Kansas soldier who has been away from his home at Salina for two years. When he returned to Camp Funston the other day he received a pass to spend Sunday at Salina. Instead of waiting several hours for the next train to his home town, he hit the highway and was fortunate in catching an automobile ride to Abilene. His good luck did not forsake him there, for he again took to the road and another motorist picked him up and landed him in Salina about the time the train was leaving Junction City.

Picturesque Lisbon.

Lisbon, the westernmost of European capitals, spreads itself in terraced fashion over its 11 hills, extending for more than five miles along the shores of the famous Rada de Lisbon, and for more than three miles inland. Beyond the narrow channel leading out of the Rada through which flow the waters of the Tagus lies the open sea, and some 800 miles away over the horizon to the west are the Azores.

NOTED PASTOR

LAUDS TANLAC

That the stomach is the fountain head of most diseases was again proven in the case of the Rev. Jonah Smith, Wilkes-Barre, who after suffering six years with kidney trouble, found absolute relief through taking Tanlac. He said:

"Severe pains in the back and across the kidneys used to hold me almost rigid. Before I had finished a half bottle of Tanlac I could feel the beneficial effects, while to-day kidney trouble is a thing of the past. Tanlac got my stomach working right and kidney trouble soon left."

People suffering from nervous debility, sleeplessness, lost vitality, poor appetites, headaches, indigestion, weakness, stomach, liver and kidney troubles should take Tanlac, the "Master Medicine of Millions." Sold here by People's Drug Store.

Undeveloped Country.
Lake St. John, at the head of the picturesque Saguenay river, has been brought to the notice of the Royal Society of Arts by Prof. J. C. McLaughlin as one of the best undeveloped power sources in North America. It has an area of about 350 square miles, drains a basin of 30,000 square miles, and is 315 feet above sea level. Three easily developed power sites are capable of yielding a total of 1,000,000 horse power at tidalwater, and many sites for docks and industrial plants are available on the river.

A Tractor You Will Like

YOU are going to like the tractor that does your work cheaply and well. The fact that it does this for a long period of time will not make you like it any less.

That kerosene tractors are practical farm machines was demonstrated at the International tractor school. Not only are they dependable, but as compared with gasoline-driven tractors of the same rated horse power they show a clear saving of from 50 to 60 per cent on cost of fuel used.

International 8-16 Kerosene Tractor

This strong, light-weight tractor is especially adapted for the average farm. It would be impossible, in this small space, to mention half of the many jobs that can be quickly done by this machine. In the field, on the road or at the belt it busies itself getting work out of the way in record time.

To be sure your farm work is kept up-to-the-minute and to guard against costly delays that cause unavailing regret at harvest time, place your order now for an International. Think of the scores of jobs it can do for you at a tremendous saving in time and labor—how well they will be done and at what little expense. Your tractor can be delivered in time for spring work if you see the dealer and place your order soon.

After the Years

By OTILLIA FRANCES PFEIFFER

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

The kindly faced, gray-bearded old man occupying section seven in the Pullman sleeper gave a great start as a poignant cry echoed through the coach. He sought the source of the outburst and, at sight of the white, despairing face of a modestly attired young girl, advanced towards her.

Her hands were clasped and her eyes, affrighted, were fixed past the open car window. She sat now like one turned to stone by some vivid calamity. She had boarded the train at Denver, Marvin Hope had noted, and the conductor had just appeared at the other end of the car.

"You are troubled," he spoke instantly. "What is it, young lady?" Elva Merrill turned her gaze upon the speaker and burst into tears. "Oh, sir!" she breathed, gaspingly. "My ticket! I was getting ready for the conductor and for only an instant placed it on the window sill. The wind took it and—oh! what shall I do?"

"Where were you going?" inquired Mr. Hope.

The reply named a point in Southern California, and added the further information that she had no money of consequence and had given up a position she had held in a town fifty miles from Denver. "What can I do?" she faltered. "The ticket is gone, I have no home, no friend nearer than my destination."

"We shall arrange that," spoke Marvin Hope. "Just try and be calm. I will speak to the conductor," and, moved by an impulse his generous nature could not resist, he went to the conductor, spoke to him for some minutes and then returned to the side of Elva. "It is all settled," he said, with a great deal of cheerfulness in his tone. "At the next station the conductor, by my desire, will secure a through ticket for you."

"But I cannot pay for it," remonstrated Elva. "Not now, perhaps, but possibly later. Listen, young lady. I am bound for the same destination as yourself. You will tell me your story, and we shall try to discover some way to make you feel free to accept a temporary loan from a lonely old man who is glad to aid anybody in distress."

"Indeed, I can reimburse you!" declared Elva, fervently. "My friend at San Druro is a Mrs. Honoria Purcell. I was her companion two years ago, but she was very hard to get along with and I sought other employment. Last week she wrote to me offering a two years' contract and is seemingly anxious to have me accept. I am sure she will advance me sufficient to repay you."

"I am sure of that, too," replied Mr. Hope in his gentle, reassuring way. "for Mrs. Purcell is a wealthy woman whom I know quite well. And your name, young lady?"

"It is Elva Merrill," Marvin Hope gave a violent start. It was well that Elva had her gaze averted at that moment, else she would have been amazed, possibly alarmed, at the manifest emotion of her benefactor. He seemed to experience difficulty in restraining an impulse to seize her hands, or fold her in his arms, pouring forth a wild torrent of words of gladness and joy crowding to his trembling lips. He recovered his self-possession as Elva exhibited the letter from Mrs. Purcell. He listened breathlessly to the story of her life; bereft of a mother, her only near relative, two years previous, and later trials attending the earning of her own living.

"Were there none other of near kin?" he asked. "No dear friends?" Elva shook her head sadly.

From that point until the end of the journey Marvin Hope exercised a fatherly care for the homeless girl, that every hour increased her confidence in him. When they reached San Druro his automobile and chauffeur were in evidence. When the machine stopped it was before a beautiful mansion set in the midst of an exquisite garden. Elva supposed this to be the residence of Mrs. Purcell.

"Home!" Marvin Hope announced, as they were met in the hall by a motherly housekeeper—"my home, and yours! My dear, I gave you a fictitious name, for a purpose. I am your uncle—your mother's brother, Marvin Hope—and I was just disappointedly returning from a vain search for you at your former home. I found no trace and you can imagine the sorrow of a lonely old man who awoke at last to a longing hunger for the company of his own flesh and blood. You will not go to Mrs. Purcell. You will remain here, my own adopted child, until you marry."

"I shall never marry," spoke Elva, and her fair face fell.

"What! Not even if Rodney Parton comes after you?" "Rodney Parton!" breathed Elva. "You know of him?"

"My dear," replied Mr. Hope, "searching for you I found him also upon the same quest. You had left your old home, never dreaming how he loved you. Well, I telegraphed him en route that I had found you, and he is probably now speeding on his way to lay his heart at your feet. This shall be his home, as well as yours and mine."

And, her arms about the neck of this grand benefactor, Elva Merrill sobbed out the joy and gladness that was welling up within her happy soul.

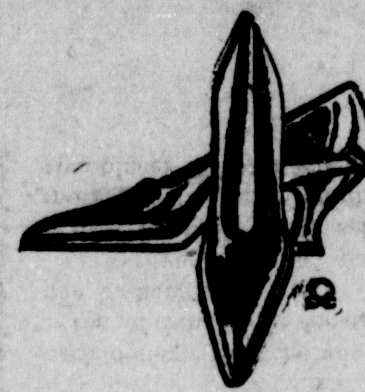

Mutual Obligations.

"Husbands should be frank and tell their wives everything," says a woman writer. Yes, and wives should be generous and believe it.
